Quickly Restores Lost Vigor

A Free Trial Package Sent by Mail to All Who Write.

Free trial packages of a most remarkable remedy are being malied to all who will write the State Medical Institute. They cured so many men who had battled for years against the mental and physical surfering of lost manhood that the institute has decided to distribute free trial packages to all who write. It is a home treatment, and all men who suffer with any form of sexual weakness, resulting from youthful folly, premature loss of strength and memory, weak back, varicocele, or emaclation of parts, can now cure themselves at home.

The remedy has a peculiarly grateful effect of warmth, and seems to act direct to the desired location, giving strength and development just where it is needed. It cures all the ills and troubles that come from years of misuse of the natural functions, and has been an absolute success in all cases. A request to the State Medical institute, 621 Elektron building, Fort Wayne, Ind., stating that you desire one of their free trial nackarses will be compled with Institute, 621 Elektron building, Fort Wayne, Ind., stating that you desire one of their free trial packages, will be compiled with promptly. The institute is desirous of reaching that great class of men who are unable to leave home to be treated, and the tree sample will enable them to see how easy it is to be cured of sexual weakness when the proper remedies are employed. The Institute makes no restrictions. Any man who writes will be sent a free sample, carefully sealed in a plain package, so that its recipient need have no fear of embarrassment or publicity, Readers are requested to write without delay.

"Little Old File Man" Had Money in Every Pocket of Tattered Garments.

TAKEN TO AN INSANE ASYLUM

Eked Out a Living by Doing Odd Jobs and Selling Old Tin Cans and Other Refuse.

New York, Oct. 26.-Fishing in ash barels for rags and old tin cans, although the pockets of his tattered clothes were filled ncy, a little, bent man was found and taken to Bellevue Hospital for examination as to his sanity. There he gave his ame as Oscar Reis and the man who ac-companied his, John McGee, asked that he committed to an institution.

At the hospital the attendants saw nothing unusual in the spectacle of the little Ing unusual in the spectacle of the little old man, whose eyes wandered aimlessly. But they had a surprise when they started to make a search of Reis's clothes in order to place his belongings in safekeeping. In every pocket he had money. From his regged trousers pockets they took more than 1000 in bilis. His coat pockets contained several hundred more; bills were stuffed into his waistcoat, and upon turning out one of his back pockets a flood of coin-nickels, quarters and half dollars—poured upon the 1000.

quarters and half dollars—poured upon the loor.

When the little mint had been fully explored it was found that the sum total of the man's money amounted to $1.187.

McGee explained that he had known Reis for a number of years and that the man's eccentricities, slight at first, had so increased that it seemed best to have him sent to some institution for safekeeping.

Reis came to this country from Germany sighteen years ago. He was then little over $0, but his life of exposure and neglect during the last few years has given him the appearance of being twice his real age. For a while he worked at cabine:making, but the wandering habit grew strong upon him, and he did not long succeed in holding a steady position.

About two years ago he took a room at 18 East Houston street. To the people of the neighborhood he was known as "The Little Oid File Man," a name which they applied to him by reason of the fact that his chief occupation was sharpening knives with files. He wandered from one shop to another soliciting orders to sharpen knives, and seemed exceedingly grateful every time any one put of sheer pity would give him 5 cents for doing such work.

In addition he managed to earn a few oents each week by selling old tin cans and rags that he gathered from the dust heaps. But to the surprise of the neighborhood he never seemed to be without ready money in far larger quantities than he could possibly have earned by his precarious occupation.

Rels had a reputation for liberality in the wichilty of the house where he lived, and the people were frequently invited to come in and share his can of beer. Naturally, that helped to make him popular, but he had little to say for himself.

One of the men who knew him said that Rels often complained to him of the illiuck that find befallen him, with his wife in Germany. He conveyed the idea to this man that, he had left the old country on account of domestic troubles, and that he still pines for his native land.

At Mr. Hecker's home it was said that Rels received regularly a large sum of money from a brother in Germany. McGee has known him for about ten years, and often remonstrated with him about his peculiar manner of living. But if his friend insisted on having Rels put on a good suit of clothes, the very next day the eccentric man would again appear in his rags.

"Is not church music highly instructive and as important as any other branch of the art? The musicial interests in towns like Parkersburg, W. Va., and Louisville, Ky., are far ahead of St. Louis, and have more artists visit them and more real meritorious work performed than in St. Louis. These conditions should not be. The churches should encourage singers by opening wider their funds, employing the very best talent, and the public should open their pocketbooks and support the worthy organizations. Rag-time music was never composed by any great musician. "Rag-time, as is known here and groperly called, would be scoffed at by the great musicians. That they employed the term syncopated rhythm in compositions classical, is not questioned, but 'rag-time' music never.

Myself and family are all greatly improved in health. We have largely abandoned the use of white bread. Upwards of twenty-five persons have changed their diet on my recommendation. It is gladly given, because I know, from personal experience, whereof I speak."

It is a well-known fact that white bread is almost entirely composed of starch and this is difficult of digestion by many people, particularly those who have weak intestinal digestion. The result of the use of much white bread is a lack of brain and nervous power to do mental work, and it also creates intestinal troubles, because the excess of starch ferments in the intestines and makes the conditions right for the prowth of microbes; whereas, Grape-Nuts breakfast food contains the needed starch, but in a predigested form. That is, it is transformed into grape sugar in the process of manufacture, and delivered in the packages, ready cooked, and in such shape that it is immediately assimilated without hard work of the digestive organs.

The food also contains the delicate particles of phosphate of potash which, combined with albumen, is used by nature to make the gray matter that must be in the cells of the brain and the nerve centers throughout the body, in order to give streagth and ability to stand long and continuous work. When Mrs. James L. Blair made her at-

upon that class of musicians that follow the profession as a business, and every-

the contingency.

The persistent demand that has been made for this kind of music has nearly driven the old-time artists to desperation though they are always striving to create semething that will please. When Mrs. Blair made her sensational talk before the Congregational Club they hailed it as the beginning in a change of sentiment, and, taking the reform at its tide, they are pushing it with the hope of elevating local tastes for something higher in the world of music.

Resolutions have been passed by music organizations, including the Musicians' Mu-ation Adopted Resolutions.

Mrs. James L. Blair's statements that classical music is not appreciated in St. Louis and that "ragtime" is preferred meets with the approval of the Musicians' Mutual Benefit Association. At a meeting Friday night they adopted a resolution commending Mrs. Blair for the stand she has taken. The resolution follows:

"Whereas, Mrs. James L. Blair, in a paper read before the Congregational Club of St. Louis, Mo., in logical, brave and eloquent words portrayed the true situation of the cultivation of the divine art in the city of St. Louis; therefore, be it "Resolved. That the Musicians' Mutual Benefit Association of St. Louis hereby extend to Mrs. James L. Blair a vote of thanks, with the assurance that her brave, true and eloquent words are highly appreciated and will be gratefully remembered."

President Otto Ostendorf says the invasion of ragtime is to be regretted, and so far as his association is able to do so it will be stopped. The Musicians' Mutual Benefit Association is made up of professional musicians, he says, and it is necessary for them to cater to all classes, but he hopes Mrs. Blair's words will start the public to thinking, and that it will mean utter disregard for ragtime in the near future. roing about concerning the way the King is vaking up every one, great or small, important or otherwise, connected with the court, His Majesty has always been famous for ils activity, physical as well as mental. Since he came to the throne he has very clearly demonstrated the fact that his vigor is not only unimpaired, but very much the ther way about. For many years the court has had a very easy time, indeed. Salaries were drawn, but in many cases little or no vork was done in return.

Certain high officials, it is no exaggeration o say, never stirred a finger, their duties being performed by deputies. Indeed, in some instances some of them passed most of their days abroad, and were only in England a few weeks out of the fifty-two. If they were inquired after, there was always the good old excuse, "away for the benefit of health." This was considered sufficient, and no questions were asked.

Washington, Oct. 25.—Plans are under way for the erection at Eckington of a fitting memorial to the late President McKinley, in the form of a new Methodist Church, to be known as the McKinley Memorial Church. The Reverend H. R. Naylor, the Presiding Elder of the Washington district, has taken the matter in hand, and he is being assisted by most of the prominent clergymen of the city, including those of other denominations. While nothing has been advanced beyond the preliminary stage, it is intended to build an edifice worthy of the name it is to bear, at an estimated cost of $100,000. But the end has abruptly come to all this, The King, I hear, has had a list drawn up and put before him giving the names and ages of all the court officials, their duties, pay and length of service standing to their credit. This list has already been reduced to workable limits, and those officials who were not pensioned off or removed have been informed they are expected to pay stricter attention to their duties than here tofore, and not take holidays or absent themselves from their offices without obtaining permission or giving written rea-sons of absence. In some cases, too, sala-ries have been cut down, and in others cer-tain offices have been abolished, with the result that the court machinery has been put into a workable and efficient condition.

Newark, N. J., Oct. 26.—Manager Jacobs and Manager Blaney, rival theater owners, are observing an armed truce, while they try to find out who it was that plastered the walls of Manager Jacob's playhouse with Manager Blaney's "paper."

The thing was done at night, and it was done thoroughly. The Jacobs wall was completely covered with Blaney lithographs. Of course, Manager Jacob's was angry. He stormed and said mean things, and then ordered his stage hands to take a hose and a garden hoe and dig the "paper" off. It was two hours' hard work, for the "paper" was stuck on to stay.

Then Jacobs went to see Blaney about the matter. It was a tumultuous scene, with Jacobs figuring most prominently in the tumult. Blaney said he didn't know a thing about the papering and defled Jacobs to prove that he did. He finally convinced Jacobs that he was innocent, and the incident closed with a handshaking.
